Acknowledgements

First of all I would like to express a deep sense of gratitude to late Prof Yadava, who initiated me to the ideas of M.N.Roy by exposing me to his voluminous writings and inspired me to take up this project. It was only after carrying out long discussions with him on contemporary issues within the framework of Roy's ideas and attending a number of conferences and study camps organized by Indian Renaissance Institute, Indian Radical Humanist Association, Citizens for Democracy at the insistence of Prof Yadava, that I was convinced to take up the present study as a topic for my Ph.D dissertation. I will remain indebted to him for the stimulation and the motivation I received from him.

It is with immense pleasure that I acknowledge my thanks to my supervisor Prof. R.C.Sarikwal for his scholastic guidance and sagacious suggestions throughout this study. Without his sympathetic understanding and support this venture would not have been possible. He has been more of a friend than a supervisor so it has been a pleasure to work with him.

I would also like to thank a host of individuals involved in the radical humanist movement, (some of whom are no more) for the invaluable information and suggestions they provided me to enable me to complete my thesis. Among them I may mention the names of late V.M.Tarkunde, Nigam, Gaur Kishre Ghosh, M.V.Ramamurthy, Indumati parikh, C.R.M.Rao, Sibnarayan Ray, M.A.Rane, Sunil Bhattacharya, Malladi Suhamma, manol Dutta, R.M.pal, Vinod Jain, N.D.Pancholi, Innaiah Narsetti, Sangeeta Mall. I am indebted to them for taking out time from their busy schedule for interviews and providing me with first hand information pertaining to the history and actual functioning of the movement.

My thanks are due to Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), particularly to Shri. Bhaskar Chatterjee, Director-General and Prof. Panchmukhi, Chairperson, ICSSR, for supporting my project by granting me research fellowship under salary protection scheme for teachers, for a period of two years. Without this support it would have been impossible to finish this task. I would also like to record my gratitude to S.D.College, Ghaziabad, particularly the principal Dr.Sukhbir Singh and Dr. Mangal, Head, Dept of Sociology for providing me the institutional support during the period of my fellowship.

My thanks are also due to my college authorities particularly to the Principal and Members of the college Management Committee for granting me leave from the college for a period of two years. I would also like to thank my departmental colleagues for putting up with extra workload in my absence.

Finally I would like to thank my husband, Krishna, who has supported me almost with a missionary zeal to see me through this work. It would not have been possible for me to finish this project without his intellectual inputs and the long hours he has put in for editing the manuscript. My thanks are also due to my loving children Ankur and Shweta for providing me encouragement and support during the dull and difficult moments during my thesis.
